RANDAL BODOLPH '04
LIME MALQUIST '39

Now that the academic year has nearly ended, the Old Boy finds his thoughts turning towards the heady promises of fun and excitement made by Summer's reckless advance. No, he is not referring to a hopeful tryst with that gifted Cardinal athlete Sanders, but rather to the approach of a glorious season of sun, fun, and of course... work.

Alas, it is not all fun and games over the hot hiatus. Soon after deciding to cut those smothering apron strings and strike out on his own, the jolly one was rudely slapped in the face by the necessity of that despicable four-letter word, "rent." And not just the few dollars you fork over for the privilege of watching a fuzzy copy of Weird Science in the comfort of your own home -- this is the kind of rent that sucks money out of the bank account like a big lime slushy.

At first, you can try sending home letters once a month to Mom and Dad: "Hi, Mom and Dad! How are you? I am fine. Please send me a check for $400 again -- the last one was eaten by a pigeon. I love you a lot." But once the old folks get back their monthly bank statement, this ploy is generally greeted with at least mild suspicion. Eventually it becomes necessary to get a job.

Now that can mean many things. It can mean playing interstate bingo with rejection letters. It can mean listening to the Nashville Hour on a local radio station hundreds of miles away, while some graduate of Blaine Beauty School plays "eenie-meenie-miney-moe" with the calls on "hold." It may even mean strolling around in a mall somewhere, sucking on a strawberry shake and looking for "Help Wanted" signs in the windows of all the lingerie shops. But sooner or later you'll probably be able to sucker someone into hiring you.

So you diligently slave away all summer under the cruel yoke of financial independence. You save every penny that doesn't go to necessities like rent, food, and the new David Cassidy album. Finally, after months of grueling labor, your sacrifice is rewarded: you just may be able to pay off most of your Fall Quarter bill next year. Except for you graduating seniors who are reading this -- you may just be able to pay off you loans from Fall Quarter of 1988. But we shouldn't have to worry about problems like this much longer. Incoming Prez Gerhard Casper doesn't like giving out loans too much anyway. (For those of you who may have been watching these pages for some kind of trite cartoon of "Casper the Friendly President," forget it. It's much too obvious. And our cartoonist got sick.)

So have fun this summer. Hang on to this issue to get you through those tough times on the toilet. Yeah, it's only eight pages, but it's the quality that counts, not the quantity. Hmm.... well, hang on to it anyway.

Laugh well.

“TEARS OF A CLOWN” AWARD

Presented to:
OASIS Campaign
coordinator,
Nawaar Kasrawi

Responding to the failure of his group's special fee request by the second largest margin of the Spring COP elections, Nawaar took things evenly in stride. Putting it all in perspective, he reflected thoughtfully, "We are losing along with films no one watches, a magazine that has put out horrible issues, and a club for original music." When asked what might account for the distressing result of the fee-request campaign, he wasn't afraid to square his shoulders and place the blame where it was due: "I really don't think students here fully understand the results of their actions," he remarked.

But, apparently anxious not to divorce himself from his loyal constituency, he pointed out that he himself was in the same boat, saying, "I am absolutely stunned. I cannot understand the results." Understandably upset, Nawaar continued to ponder the meaning of such a decisive denial. "It just amazes me that we could do so poorly," he said, "without any negative campaigning done against us. I mean, usually groups do this badly after other groups shove them into the ground."

Well, buck up, Nawaar! Things are bound to get better! Just keep your chin up and your dander down, and eventually fate will smile on your cheerful countenance. It was probably just a fluke, like the results of this year's ASSU Senate race ... and last year's. They'd probably vote for you if they only met you. Maybe you could introduce yourself by sending electronic mail messages to everyone with an account on Leland? At least it would raise political consciousness, don't you think?

You can't always get what you want. Or so they say. But usually it's because you just didn't try hard enough. Remember when Rocky got his ass kicked by Clubber Lang? It was because he didn't have that "eye of the tiger." If you really want something, you've got to be willing to do everything in your power to get it -- to be the best you can be. When you're looking for a job, then your resume has to be the best it can be, too. This requires a little bit of creativity on your part, but the good things never come easy. Never fear, though, because Chappie is here to get you started. Often job seekers sell themselves short just by the language they use to describe themselves. What's the difference between a garbageman and a "sanitation engineer?" Nothing, right? WRONG! One of those poor schmucks is constantly unemployed, while the other finds municipalities eager to hire him wherever he goes. In today's society, it just doesn't pay to ignore those subtle nuances of language. It made the difference in your CIV papers, and it makes the difference here, too. So in order to get those juices flowing again (no, not THOSE juices!) the Old Boy humbly presents:
