Now That you've seen what we can do are you a believer? If the Daily Parody didn't get you giggling then you better sign up to be an Editor at that most illustrious tomb of good humor. I know you may have heard it all a thousand times but we still haven't gotten to give you, the students, our side of the story. Of course, our side has been pretty clearly stated in other publications.

The week before Grace claimed in her "editor's note" that they had not committed censorship, the San Francisco Examiner ran a feature editorial condemning her paper's actions as a violation of freedom of speech. The editorial made an excellent point. If colleges, hotbeds of open mindedness, do not respect these rights, then who will?

After all, the Daily staff represents a future crop of journalists. Of course, I don't think the Wall Street Journal would ever snatch up 5,000 copies of SPY magazine if they did a parody.

Oh, that's another thing we would like to make clear. Every time the Daily claims they took only 1000 copies, they are lying. Any good reporter knows that four, three foot high stacks of newspapers is a lot more than 1000 copies. That is what we saw locked carefully away in their back room.

But, that back room brings us to the most important issue, one which has not been addressed and which still eats at the hearts of us Chappies. There are a lot of pretentious people out there and a lot of people who take themselves very seriously. Taking yourself and your publication seriously is fine, that's how things get done. If you think we don't ever have to take things seriously to get all of our issues out, then you're warped. But there's a difference between taking things seriously and going around with a golf cart and ripping Daily Parodies out of peoples hands.

So, the most important point for us is that the students had fun and enjoyed our work. That's much more important to us than money or power or copyright or censorship.

But of course it does take money to print issues (luckily our lawyer was free - and funny too), so support the Chappie when your at the polls voting for fee requests and we'll keep cranking out funny stuff for you.

Student Government: A Hotbed of Intellect

If you want to know all about your senate candidates look in the Election Handbook. But, if you just want the good stuff, here it is. They'll make you think, they'll make you laugh, they'll make you wonder how the hell they got into Stanford.

UNINTELLIGIBLE STATEMENT BUT SOUNDS GOOD
"I promise that no meeting will miss me" (Steve Russel)
"I am endorsed by the People's Platform and if elected, I will focus on the Platform's goal which is to represent the People." (Folstrom)

RECOGNIZING LIMITATIONS
"A position in the ASSU does not give absolute power." (Mark Cordoba)

FRUSTRATED
"Since my first week here at Stanford, I have been frustrated." (Irene Folstrom)

HONESTY AWARD: Capri Cafaro
"I would like to be a Senator because I would like to become....[a] Stanford tick."
"I may not be brilliant but what I am is diligent." (Capri Cafaro.)

ARMAGEDDON IS COMING
"Elect me and I'll stop the madness" (Jason Liu)

UNECESSARY PROMISES
"I believe in increased campus safety' more lights, tele phones at key locations." (Cordoba)
"Make Hoover Institute more accessible." (Ed Malone)

MOST QUALIFIED
"New-Age politician, charismatic leader, limbo champion" (Navin Jani)

A MAJOR STEP BACKWARDS
Tom Adams - former staff member US House Banking Committee. At least we know he's not packing his resume.

FUCK YEAH!
"Orgies in White Plaza" (Neil Goldman)
"WE have the power to fill the gap in our university; elect someone who has the power to do it" (Nicole Vasquez)
"Do You want a mover and a shaker?" (Patty Ferguson)

EVERY PROBLEM CONDENSED IN ONE SENTENCE
"I care about ethnic centers and ethnic studies, ASSU funding procedures, and communication across all levels of our University, with student input through dorms and organizations being the priority." (Nicole Vasquez)

NICE RHYMES
"I need you to vote for me— Michelle Gee." (Michelle Gee)

WOOHOO CLEVER NAME PUNS!
"You got the right Juan Baby!" (Juan Leon)
"CHOOse Choo" (Mike Choo)

VAGUE REFERENCES
"I refuse to be bound by special interests" (Navin PM Jani)
"Improve strong concepts" (Jim Cassidy)

BLOOD IN THE ASSU?
"Thomas Jefferson said America must water its soil with the blood of revolution once every generation" (Navin Jani)

BATTERING THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE
"I'm for identifying methods of allowing students to better take advantage of the potentially very useful resource of their student government." (Celeste Johnson)

"You'll see a strong effort on my part to reduce anonymity of the representatives and misunderstanding of the issues while incorporating public interest in proposing solutions." (Ginger Richardson)

"My experience with the Senate this year has prepared me to serve the Association with the motivation to actually be a catalyst for the transformation with the Association and the Senate." (Irene Folstrom)

"I am committed to advocating for student concerns in order to make better decisions for our campus" (Patty Ferguson)

YEAH RIGHT, SURE YOU'LL DO IT
"I will visit dorm meetings and gain valuable insight into issues." (Rupali Gandhi)

"Turning Tressider into a true student union." (Smeeta Ramarathan)

"Student Management of Bookstore and Tresider." (Teamsters COP)

"I will do my best with undying persistence." (Steve Boord)

"I will increase respect from the university Administration for the ASSU."

GETTING TO THE BOTTOM OF THINGS
"I didn't run last year because I wanted to wait another year and learn more about what the Senate does. As this year progressed, I find that I have gained no further knowledge of of the Senate's actions/activities." (Samir Kothari)

In the senator's statements, they are required to list some of the their "PREVIOUS OFFICES HELD"

HIGHLIGHTS FROM THAT PRESTIGIOUS LIST:
Girl's Nation, Texas Girl's State Delegate (Smeeta Ramarathan) (and they say that Texans don't know how to have fun!)
Technical Consultant to the Board. (Steve Russell)
Treasurer Moore/Paloma house government. (Samir Kothari)
Numerous leadership positions throughout high school (Samir Kothari)
J.K Mullen High School Senior Community Service Project coordinator (Carlos Ramirez Waissar)
"Freshman living in Stanford's African American Theme House" (Ginger Richardson)
"President, Vice-President, Secretary, Director, and Captain of too many high school org. to list here" (Nancy Salas)
Pledge Educator, Kappa Sigma Fraternity (Robert Amen)

SURE I HAVE TIME FOR THE SENATE
Patty Ferguson holds 12 positions and is only a freshman!!!

DO STANFORD STUDENTS REALLY DESERVE A TACO BELL?

The results from our survey of prospective senators demonstrate Stanford student's basic lack of knowledge when it comes to the Taco Bell value menus. We asked the students to sort a bean burrito with extra sour cream, a taco, a chilito and a chicken fajita according to price. Only two candidates managed to piece together the right order. One candidate got three right and he was on the US House Banking committee, for christsakes. Here we are whining about when this new Taco Bell will come while it is clear that most students are not true connoisseurs. They do not know how to stretch the change stuck between the two front seats of their car into a taco fiesta. Worst of all, nobody recognized the fact that Chicken Fajitas no longer exist. Eleven senators got 1 item in the right order and two got none right. Don't vote for these people, they have no respect for a good hand-packaged meal. They also are not fiscally responsible, and that's the last thing the ASSU needs. On the other hand, it is refreshing that most senate candidates are not as stingy as a guy who was on the US House Banking Committee.

A monstrous 13.5% of senate candidates said they would have plastic surgery on their toes. Besides the obvious "nose", "toes" was the most popular answer. WHY TOES? Why not penis enlargement or breast implants. We're they trying to be clever? It's not a clever answer. No one ever sees your toes. No one cares to see your toes. In fact, I bet that if you watch people's eyes when your bare feet are showing THEY CONSCIOUSLY AVOID LOOKING DOWN THERE. Besides, there's not much you can do to your feet. Whadda ya say to the doctor? "Yes I'd like my pinky toe to be a little more perky. Do a little lypo on the big fella, he's getting kind of plump." Not to mention the walking difficulties it would cause. Don't you get used to toes the way they are? It's like shortening one of your legs or lopping off part of a finger.

How is it that 13.5% of senate candidates think that AIDS is a venereal disease? Is AIDS a venereal disease? Jeez, just when you thought you knew everything about it. That's pretty goddam scary.

LIVING IN DENIAL: KOJAK IS DEAD

ONLY 3% of candidates (that's one candidate) recognized the fact that Kojak no longer has hair color because he is dead. Several candidates did mention that they found Kojak sexy, not uncommon. He was after all in the Players Club, baby. Nevertheless, he is still dead.

89% of senate candidates did not know what a Fez was

40% of senate candidates say they are "victims" of grade inflation

15% of undergraduate senate candidates named Sanford Dickert, the infamous graduate senator, as one of the graduate students they knew. That's OK, at least they knew his last name. Come on guys, everyone knows a grad student named Bill.

THE MULTICULTURALISM TEST

A measly 11% of senate candidates had the guts to assert the possibility that "no old people don't smell funny." There is no clearer proof of the other candidates inability to stand up for minority groups. Just because we asked them the question, it doesn't mean that old people really do smell funny. But those spineless bastards went right ahead and took the opportunity to make fun of defenseless, cane-dependent humans. How can they be trusted to defend minority groups?

A whopping 50% of the candidates could give no numerical estimate of how many votes they were expecting. In fact, the best answers they could give involved the words "hopefully" (4 times) and "enough" (6 times.) If they say "enough" does that mean that they want enough to win or just enough to make themselves feel good? Strangely enough, this group also includes the most avid flier posters. And they say you need to be secure and confident to make a good politician.
